PAYNE WINS IN EIGHTH ROUND.

"Young Corbett" No Match For The Winner at San Francisco.

San Francisco, July 19.—"Young Corbett," the one-time conqueror of Terry McGovern, proved an easy victim for young "Johnny" Payne of San Francisco, who knocked him out Saturday in the eighth round of a bout scheduled to go 25 rounds. Corbett probably was in no condition to put up a hard battle, and at no time did he appear to have a chance. The men were to have weighed in at 135 pounds at 10 o'clock Saturday morning but Corbett failed to make the weight, and it was announced that he was fully two pounds in excess of the requirements.

The Corbett of yesterday was a mere shadow of the once great lightweight who but a few years ago electrified the sporting world with his wonderful battles. His famous "haymaker" was ill-timed and there was no power behind it. The contest was a tame and uninteresting affair up to the time of the knockout. In the eighth round Payne shot out right and left, catching Corbett on the jaw and the one-time champion was sent to his couches for the first of seven. He was dazed and wobbled about the ring. Payne promptly toppled him over with a powerful right and left to the jaw. At this time a merciful second threw the sponge into the ring as a token of defeat, and the Californian was awarded the verdict by Referee Kreling.

JOHNSON FAILED TO SHOW UP.

Jeff Postpones Fighting That $10,000 Forfeit.

Chicago, July 19.—James J. Jeffries and Jack Johnson failed to meet here Saturday, according to the schedule outlined by their representatives. Jeffries was at the appointed place, but Johnson did not leave his training camp in Indiana until late in the day, and said he would meet Jeffries.

Jeffries issued a signed statement later in which he said:

"In view of the many conflicting reports regarding my intentions, I will make my plans public as follows: 'At the conclusion of my theatrical contract, which will be July 25, I will sail for Europe for a two or three week visit to California. Before sailing I will post my forfeit to meet Johnson before the club offering the best inducements and best situated to hold the contest.'

"Sam Berger, who will act as my pugilistic manager, will remain here and consider all the details in readiness for final signature when I return. I sincerely hope that my action will quiet the doubts of those who have questioned the sincerity of my intentions."

LOWER TARIFF NOW IN SIGHT

The Wise Ones in Washington

THINK TAFT WILL WIN

Woolen Schedule Agreed Upon—Cotton Rates Move With More Difficulty. Some Fraction Over Steel.

Washington, D. C., July 19.—Comment

continued today on the statement from the White House on Friday night, bearing on the president's attitude on a downward revision of the tariff. The feeling was one of jubilation on the part of those who are of the downward faith, of helplessness on the part of the high protectionists and of regret on the part of those who have labored hard in the Senate to effect that which the president in a belated way now works hard for. They declared that there is, of course, nothing new in what the president states, but that he would have realized a far better downward revision bill if he had spoken as he has and interferred as he has at last in the tariff. "You cannot catch a log as it is going over the falls," said one senator pertinently.

It was also believed that the event of Saturday was simply an incident of a carefully evolved plan agreed upon long ago between the Senate and the House powers. That the president and Messrs. Aldrich and Cannon have been known for some time. Evidently Mr. Taft was to have his way with respect to certain material schedules, and the free list, and it was to become known that the conferees would yield to the president, who was thereupon to proclaim anew his adherence to a downward revision of the tariff, and then the conferees would report a bill embodying most of the president's wishes and there would be an explosion in both the Senate and the House, but after a loud enough noise had been made so that the constituents might feel that their representatives had made a brave fight these would yield to the wishes of the president, who would accept the responsibility. It remains to be seen if this whole program will eventuate. Part of it has eventuated. In a way the portents of yesterday are already subsiding, but Senator Warren is shouting he will vote against a bill having free hides in it.

The conference Saturday agreed upon the whole woolen schedule inclusive of woolen rope, the duty on which is to lie between secured wool and spun yarn, the duty on yarns to be reduced accordingly 5 per cent. It is claimed that this is a material reduction. The Panama bonds were agreed to, the interest to be 3 per cent. The conference in the afternoon touched on the cotton goods schedule into which the Senate has written so much inquiry. Results were not reported, as might well be. There is much to reconcile there. It appears, too, that the steel schedule is not altogether agreed upon. To the great annoyance of Senator Penrose, Mr. Payne does not at once accept Mr. Aldrich's word. Mr. Payne has to be shown, and he manages to have information per contra prepared for him and it is understood that he is to confront Mr. Aldrich with the fact that his alleged nonincreases are false. No increases are found only on steel but little imported, but substantial increases on steel considerably imported, and in one instance the duty has been increased from $94 a ton in the Dingley law to $100 a ton in the Senate bill. So much for juggling in transfer of rates from ad valorem to specific and vice versa.

Republican Whip Dwight Saturday was busy ascertaining how many sure votes there are for the conference report, no matter what it contains.

An interesting view of the tariff situation was thus expressed Saturday: "You cannot blame the republican party if it waffles in tariff revision. To reform the tariff downward is a new kind of experience for the elephant. It does not know as yet how to do it with ease. In time it will. In the circumstances the credulity and shortcomings are quite to be expected."

Mr. Taft had with him to dinner Saturday night Messrs. Payne and Aldrich and Senator Bradley, and the tobacco schedule was considered.

GREEK CABINET RESIGNS.

Former Premier Rallis Asked to Form New Ministry.

Athens, Greece, July 19.—The Greek cabinet has resigned and the king has requested D. G. Rallis, the former premier, to form a new ministry. Mr. Rallis has asked for time to consider the matter, and will announce his decision tomorrow. There have been no disturbances.

The cabinet which was just resigned and of which D. N. Theofanis was premier, was formed December 21, 1905. It resigned on March 31 last, in protest against the action of the king, who received a deputation of citizens contrary to the government's wishes; but its resignation was reconsidered a few days later and withdrawn.

MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE ELOPES WITH "COUNT"

Mrs. Lancaster Flees to Turpe With Costarelli.—Husband Tries to Stop Pair by Wireless.

New York, July 19.—Fascination by a man, who it is said, represents himself as an Italian count, Mrs. Fannie Lancaster, a Boston society woman, wife of Joseph Lancaster, a man widely known in banking, real estate and manufacturing circles in that city, sailed from here Saturday in the steamship Baltic. She was in company with Guido Costarelli, de Gregorio.

The steamship list of first-class passengers did not contain the name of Lancaster, but the woman who accompanied the supposed count was registered as Signora Costarelli de Gregorio. She clung to his arm when going up the gang-plank. The two persons occupied different staterooms, and although registered as "Signor and Signora," made no effort to lead their fellow passengers to think them man and wife. The flight of Mrs. Lancaster, member of one of the most aristocratic and wealthy families in New England, was due evidently to the urging of the Italian, who, apparently in the hope of obtaining as his wife a woman with millions of dollars at her command, worked upon her feelings and led her to believe she did not love her husband, therefore she should run away with him.

The aim of the Italian is to force the husband to bring suit for divorce and then to marry the woman. From reports which have reached the Lancaster family in Boston, de Gregorio was not able to persuade her to occupy the same stateroom with him, and simply compelled her by influence over her to sail on the same steamer with him.

Through the solicitude of her husband and her mother, who expected her in a summer resort in Vermont and were disappointed by her non-arrival at the appointed time, Mrs. Lancaster's flight was discovered.

Mrs. Lancaster was Fannie Connable, daughter of Mrs. Caroline Connable, a widow living in Commonwealth avenue. The Connable family dates back to ante-revolutionary times, and one of the ancestors took a prominent part in King William's war. Brothers of Mrs. Lancaster are engaged in industrial and manufacturing enterprises in Massachusetts.

The Lancasters were married about six years ago. For several months the couple have been living in the Hemlock apartments on the Back Bay section. They have no children.

HIS POTATOES HAS NO TOPS.

One Grower Doesn't Have to Fight Bugs.

Salem, Ohio, July 19.—Potatoes without tops are being raised by John Groves of this city on a small patch of ground and the fine, large "spuds" are being examined with curiosity and interest by hundreds of citizens and farmers, who have seen a number of them on exhibition.

The patch of potatoes was planted by the owner about a month ago after many experiments, and now the bulbs have grown to the size of large hen's eggs, but are clean and white and growing rapidly.

Samples will be sent to the state experimental station at Wooster by the grower, who is the envy of his neighbors, who come from their potato bog to gaze in wonder at the topless crop of tubers.

AUTOMOBILE HITS A TREE.

Fatal Accident at Islip, N. Y.—Machine Going at Full Speed.

Islip, N. Y., July 19.—A crowded automobile, running at full speed crashed into a tree at Islip, N. Y., Saturday, throwing out three men and three women. Miss Alice Ryan of Manhattan struck the tree. She was found to have sustained a fractured skull and internal hurts, and her recovery is considered impossible. Of the others in the car, comprising a party of friends on an outing trip to Patchogue, Miss Lipp, also of Manhattan, had her arm and head badly injured but will recover. The car was wrecked. The chauffeur, Peter Rooney, of Brooklyn, along with his steering wheel and was unhurt. He is being held pending an investigation.

WIND WORKED HAYOC.

Trees Uprooted Over Square Mile at Red Hook, N. Y.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 17.—Red Hook village, 21 miles from here was swept by a terrific wind and rain storm early last night and great damage was done. For a square mile trees were uprooted, fences swept away and buildings toppled over. The roof of the Baker chocolate factory was carried away and the floors covered with a foot of water, ruining all the stock. The beautiful Armstrong estate is covered with a mass of tangled trees and fences.

The storm came from the West and swept a mile wide. The residences of W. P. Adams, Norman Mead and George Strom were almost wrecked. The grand stand on baseball grounds was lifted bodily and carried into the highway. Telephone and telegraph wires were torn down and but one wire remains. Irving Fraleigh's big orchard was completely devastated. No one was injured.

GREECE AGAIN EARTH-SHAKEN.

Several Villages Suffer Severely—Relief Trains on the Way.

Athens, July 19.—Several of those in the village of Uposseis have since died. The village of Damiza is in ruins, and a number of other villages, including Lapest and Maroneia, are suffering terribly, but the death toll is not known. Relief trains are now on the way to the stricken regions.

THAW STOLE HER FROM WHITE

Says Evelyn Thaw in an Interview

"I LOVED STANFORD WHITE"

Better Than Anyone Else I Ever Met." Mrs. Thaw Declares.—Admits She May be Unmoral, But Does Not Care.

New York, July 19.—Evelyn Nesbit

Thaw in an interview Saturday told the first comprehensive story that has ever come from her lips of the events connected with the tragedy on the Madison Square Garden roof on that night in June three years ago. This takes into account her old recital of her relationship with the victim of her husband's hatred on the witness stand.

"I have no desire to pose as an example for young American women to follow. I want no one to have illusions as to what I am. But I am just as anxious to end all the time the ridiculous nonsense that is being spread abroad as portraying me. I want two things thoroughly understood.

"The first one is that I have never committed any crime. I am a young woman whose unfortunate up bringing has ended in my being connected with a sordid murder in which I had no part and which I tried for three years to prevent.

"During my married life with Thaw I lived at home as quietly and with as much regard for the conventions as any woman ever had. I may marry again. It is all a question in my mind as to the advisability of giving up a career I have mapped out for myself or of settling down to rear children in the fashion of a good house wife and mother.

Never Traded on Her Notoriety.

"The second thing I want made plain is that I will not trade on the notoriety that has attached itself to me as a result of this terrible affair. If I chose to accept the many offers that have been made to me to go on the vaudeville stage I should be independently rich.

"That I have refused these things is no indication that I am wonderfully high principled. If you will have the truth, I am distinctly unmoral, as the world today views morals. I have my own code of ethics and I live up to them. But from present-day ideals I am unmoral. There is no question of it."

And here Mrs. Thaw made it known for the first time that there is a man of whom she thinks more than of any one else in the world. She would not tell his name.

May Yet Marry the Man She Loves.

"But I am not a bad woman," she went on. "In the sense that I spoke of bad women in that first trial. If I make up my mind to marry the man I love, I shall do it, and the world will hunt in vain for a chance to accuse me of indiscretions. If, on the other hand, I reach the conclusion my art means more to me than the raising of children; if I decide it is not right for me to become a mother and stigmatize children with the curse that has been brought upon my name—I shall tell the man I love, as I have already told him I should do, that I cannot marry him; that our marriage would be a thing to hurt us both later.

"And I shall have no hesitancy under those circumstances of giving him all the love any wife could give any husband. But always, that way I shall reserve to myself the right to devote myself to art, and there will be no bond holding me to him.

Stage Life Flabbergasted Her.

"But to tell the story I have made up my mind to tell I must begin way back when I was a child of fifteen, in the chorus of 'Floradora.' I was flabbergasted by it all. The lights and the music and the cabs and the supporters left me wondering if I were standing on my head or on my feet. Remember I had always been in more or less way for actual necessities—and I was only a child besides.

"It isn't strange then that when Stanford White singled me out and bought me a pearl drop that cost a thousand dollars and let every one know he approved of me—it isn't strange, I thought he was the most wonderful man in the world. But mistake No. 1 comes right here—and, by mistake, I mean the popular impression that was gained from my cross-expression on that first trial.

"You will remember I swore on the stand I was given a drug by Stanford White that left me unconscious at the window of the paying teller.

"Yes, madam. You must endorse it, though," explained the teller. "Why, my husband sent it to me. He is away on business," she said.

"Yes, madam. Just endorse it; sign your name on the back so we will know, and your husband will know we paid it to you."

She went to the desk against the wall and in a few moments presented the check, having written on its back: "Your loving wife, Edith,"—Bellman.

Her Indorsement.

"I want to get this check cashed," said the young matron, appearing at the window of the paying teller.

"Yes, madam. You must endorse it, though," explained the teller. "Why, my husband sent it to me. He is away on business," she said.

"Yes, madam. Just endorse it; sign your name on the back so we will know, and your husband will know we paid it to you."

She went to the desk against the wall and in a few moments presented the check, having written on its back: "Your loving wife, Edith,"—Bellman.

"Saving Face."

This is the title of a Chinese story by Lincoln Colcord in the July American Magazine of very remarkable quality. One of its interesting features is the description which Mr. Colcord gives of the method of what the Chinese call "Saving Face." The following is an incident in the story which illustrates this Oriental custom:

"Nichols and I were coming down Potters' Wharf one afternoon bound for my vessel, when we saw a singular occurrence. A Chinese sam-pan man had just finished beating his wife, and thrown her out on the dock. She was sitting flat on a pile of lumber and chanting in a monotonous tone, while fifty or a hundred men gathered around as if watching some interesting spectacle.

"This is China," said Nichols at my elbow. Behold and learn the wisdom of an old philosophy. This is the secret of the land."

"What's she saying?" I asked. "I don't understand."

"I won't bother to translate," he said. "In general, her remarks are descriptive of her honored husband and master. Just then she launched on his respected ancestors. To tell the truth, it wouldn't sound pretty in English; her figures are what you might call excessively colloquial. The woman has imagination. Look—"

"She scraped in the dirt of the wharf until she had gathered a little pile, upon which she had placed a few scraps of a man. This she addressed in swift and guttural sentences. The ring of men drew closer. Suddenly she knelt and subjected the image to an amazing indignity. I looked around, fairly thunderstruck, and noticed that not an expression crossed the countenance of a single bystander, not an exclamation escaped from any of their lips."

"Nichols laughed. 'Looks to me as if the old man had got rather the worst of it,' he said, linking his arm in mine.
